For the Sake of the Summit

A group of novice climbers were awakened very early to start their climb in pitch darkness. Walking in the dark, half-asleep, was brutal. They could barely keep up with their guide, who kept a hurried, urgent pace. When at daybreak they arrived at a shelter, their guide said, "Get comfortable. We're going to be here for awhile." The climbers argued, "Why? This is ridiculous! Let's eat, rest up, then get going. This day seems perfect for climbing." Thankfully, they stayed put. Within a short time, the sky changed, an icy wind roared in and the climbers were in the midst of a hellish snow storm. Reality set in - leaving it the night and hurrying to the shelter saved their lives. Left to their own devices, they would have left too late, meandered along the way, by-passed the shelter because of the "great" weather... and surely perished in the storm. Lesson #1: Trust your guide.

The rest of the climb was tough, not just for the freezing winds, but also for the vertical ice climbs, maneuvering narrow paths, inches from sheer drops. They already trusted their guide but they had to learn how to use their climbing tools and rely on them at every step. Once, a climber was saved from falling off a precipice because he used his ice axe to arrest the downhill slip. He survived because he learned how to use this valuable climbing tool. Lesson #2: Use your tools.

The climbers made it to the Summit. As they stood at the top, they were awed by the splendor and majesty that surrounded them. In their hearts they knew that they'd make the climb again. A climber was later asked what she learned. "Trust your guide. Use your tools." The interviewer exclaimed, "This whole ice mountain climbing thing - why would anyone ever voluntarily want to do something like this?" Her answer, "For the Summit". Lesson #3: Focus on the Summit.

History in the Making District 19 Gratitude Banquet

On Saturday, November 12, 2011 District 19 held their annual Gratitude Banquet. There was no doubt that I would be present. First, an AA road trip is a best way to get out of my comfort zone. Second, I am part of a larger fellowship. Third, it reminds me of early sobriety when we would all pile into one large car and practice sobriety together. We were treated to a great meal, an awesome speaker and an AA skit that was a spin-off of "Gilligan's Island". I've been given permission to share the song created and performed by West and East Volusia Area Members:

GILLIGAN'S ISLAND – The Tale Never Told

Well, sit right back and you'll hear a tale of alkies on the fringe.
What started as a tropic cruise became a three day binge.
There was Gilligan – the Skipper too, the Millionaire and his wife,
The Movie Star and the rest, here on this slippery isle.

The ship washed up on a desert isle, it was a dangerous trip they took.
Seven castaways set sail that day, met a thumper named Betty Book, the professor was an old-timer still worried about the drink,
MaryAnn had a plan to save the drunks, her cloud was very pink.
The Skipper's nose was rummy red, booze was all that Gilligan knew,
The Millionaire was in denial, no Friend of Bill W.
Here on this slippery isle!!

[END OF PERFORMANCE]

Now they all have sobered up as the story has been told with honesty and willingness, they trudge the Happy Road.
They had Fellowship and Sponsorship and meetings every day,
the Big Book and the 12x12,
Here on Serenity Isle!!

Thanks to District 19 for a great meal, great entertainment, a great speaker and for service well done! Anon

HOLIDAY SURVIVAL KIT

In camping, the survival kit has to stay on your body in case you lose your pack or get separated from all your regular stuff. So it is with many sober alcoholics trying to survive the holidays. It's not unheard of for us to get lost in the chaos or even (heaven forbid!!!) forget our primary purpose. Many a would-be camper only survived because they had a survival kit. Many a sober alcoholic stays sober because they not only have but they also use their holiday survival kit.

By the way, by "Holidays" I mean surviving the period between Thanksgiving and New Year's.....if you're looking for help with St. Patrick's Day or Easter.....you're on your own!!!! Here's my list:

The A.A. Tradition

The Twelfth Tradition

And finally, we of Alcoholics Anonymous believe that the principal of anonymity has an immense spiritual significance. It reminds us that we are to place principles before personalities; that we are actually to practice a genuine humility. This to the end that our great blessings may never spoil us; that we shall forever live in thankful contemplation of Him who presides over us all.

Humility in practice is a path of personal integrity - keep confidences, try not to gossip, respect the privacy of others, learn to listen to the message, not the messenger. There's little room in sobriety for pride and self-gratification when our power comes from our HP, not from our own virtue.

HOLIDAY SURVIVAL KIT, Cont'd.

MEETINGS (Campers: Water) - Whether in town or out of town, always plan to attend a meeting, in person, online, or whatever.

PHONE NUMBERS and EMAIL ADDRESSES (Campers: Duct Tape) - Make sure the information is on paper in case something happens to the cell phone, ipad, laptop or computer.

BIG BOOK (Campers: Bright-Colored Emergency Blanket) - Just like an emergency blanket provides instant shelter, warmth, and can be spotted from an aircraft, so can a Big Book provide instant "shelter", warmth and can be spotted by a Friend of Bill W.

PRAYER & MEDITATION (Campers: Candle Stub & Matches) - You might need to start a fire to keep warm. So it is with prayer and meditation. It calms me down and clears my head.

SLOGANS (Campers: Band-Aids) - A wise alcoholic always has one or two (or three or four...). A personal favorite for the holidays is... (you guessed it!)... This too shall pass!!!

ATTITUDE (Campers: Small Jackknife) - Are you familiar with a Swiss army knife? Need I say more? Yes? Okay, here goes: "complicate a one-car funeral", "screw up a free lunch", "build a mountain out of a mole hill" and "pole vault over mouse turds"... see what happens to your holidays!!! Attitude is everything.

Enjoy the holidays. Use your survival kit. Anon
