THE TALK

[Ring! Ring!]

"Hi Sponsor, it's me. I'm doing okay but I have to have THE TALK".

"Time for 'THE TALK', huh?"

"Yeah.....not looking forward to it."

"Yeah.....know what you mean. But hey, a sponsor's gotta do what a sponsor's gotta do....it'll be alright. Call me later." [Click]

There comes a time in the life of every sponsor when it's time to have THE TALK. Being able to have THE TALK is major growth for me but it's still hard after all these years. THE TALK bumps up against issues that came up in my first 4th Step a long time ago. Still today, the discomfort doesn't ever truly go away. It's because THE TALK is about confrontation. In the early days, I would wait until my sponsee had burned down her ex's house, had a "knock down drag out" at a meeting, and was working on about 6 months without a meeting.....then I would finally have THE TALK. Okay, you're right - I had to go through years of refinement.

The other day, it was time for THE TALK. My sponsee had been resting on her laurels.....leaving phone messages about her latest hairstyle, her sister's spider bite, and her upcoming job review...messages about not having time to get to meetings, declining service commitments because she was too busy, planning a weekend trip with her significant other.....nothing about where she was at in her program, what meetings she'd been to....nothing about her sobriety. After all these years, that stuff still drives me crazy!

So, we had THE TALK:

[Ring! Ring!]

"Hi. It's me. We need to have THE TALK.

"If sobriety is not a priority then we need to step back until you can get your priorities in order."

"It sounds harsh, I know, but honestly, you aren't going to meetings and you're not working steps.

"I know that life happens, but hey - life happens for everybody."

"When I agreed to be your sponsor, you agreed to be willing to do whatever you had to do."

"Between you and me, when the bedevilments (BB pp 52) start kicking my ass.....by then I'm too far off the beam and I don't like how that feels. Don't let it get that bad."

THE TALK was tough, but my sponsor was right - I had done the right thing. I know that slacking off is pre-requisite "dry drunk" stuff that we all go through at one time or another and old habits die hard....that's why we all need our sponsors to keep us focused and hold us accountable. Living as a sober Alcoholic one day at a time demands discipline. Discipline takes years to develop and I have to stay on task or alcohol will burst through the dike that I haven't been tending.

As sponsors, we are only qualified to do three things:

1. Teach someone how to work the Steps and Traditions;
2. Help someone apply the Steps and Traditions in their life;
3. Hold them accountable.

How about you? Have you been avoiding THE TALK?

From The Archives

From the Archives---More tidbits from past editions of the High 'n Dry

April 1998

The first group ever to be listed in our AA World Services Directory under Daytona Beach, Florida was in April of 1942. The group's postal address was P.O. Box 1328 and members were Dave W., Secretary and George S., Co-founder.

August 1998

On August 11, 1938, Akron and New York members began writing their stories for the Big Book.

On August 16, 1939, Dr. Bob and Sister Ignatia admitted to St. Thomas Hospital in Akron the first of more than 5,000 alcoholics they would treat over the next 10 years.

The Twenty Four Hours a Day book was written by Richmond W. in Daytona Beach. It follows the Big Book as the number two all-time best seller.

October 1998

On September 26, 1953, Richmond Walker wanted to donate $2712.62 to his group, the Daytona Beach Group. This was the net profit he received from the second and third printing of the "Twenty Four Hour" book. Richmond suggested the group discuss this donation and let him know what conclusions they reached. On November 2, 1953 the group decided to contribute $2000 to the General Service Headquarters.

Thanks to Dave W. for sharing local AA history because of your love of the history of Alcoholics Anonymous.

Self Restraint carries a Top Priority

I got sober after losing my business and picking up part-time work at a Subway shop to pay rent and eat.

Whenever I moaned and groaned about work to my sponsor and how much better I was than those fellow workers who wouldn't accept my great ideas on how things should change; he would tell me to go home and read pages 90-91 in the 12 & 12 three times before I went to bed. It did help my sanity and still does today when I'm in uncomfortable situations. Now I pass it on to others.

“A spot-check inventory taken in the midst of such disturbances can be of very great help in quieting stormy emotions. Today's spot check finds its chief application to situations which arise in each day's march. The consideration of long-standing difficulties had better be postponed, when possible, to times deliberately set aside for that purpose. The quick inventory is aimed at our daily ups and downs, especially those where people or new events throw us off balance and tempt us to make mistakes.

In all these situations we need self-restraint, honest analysis of what is involved, a willingness to admit when the fault is ours, and an equal willingness to forgive when the fault is elsewhere. We need not be discouraged when we fall into the error of our old ways, for these disciplines are not easy. We shall look for progress, not for perfection.

Our first objective will be the development of self restraint. This carries a top priority rating. When we speak or act hastily or rashly, the ability to be fair-minded and tolerant evaporates on the spot. One unkind tirade or one willful snap judgment can ruin our relation with another person for a whole day, or maybe a whole year. Nothing pays off like restraint of tongue and pen. We must avoid quick-tempered criticism and furious, power-driven argument. The same goes for sulking or silent scorn. These are emotional booby traps baited with pride and vengefulness. Our first job is to sidestep the traps. When we are tempted by the bait, we should train ourselves to step back and think. For we can neither think nor act to good purpose until the habit of self-restraint has become automatic.

Disagreeable or unexpected problems are not the only ones that call for self-control. We must be quite as careful when we begin to achieve some measure of importance and material success. For no people have ever loved personal triumphs more than we have loved them; we drank of success as of a wine which could never fail to make us feel elated. When temporary good fortune came our way, we indulged ourselves in fantasies of still greater victories over people and circumstances. Thus blinded by prideful self confidence, we were apt to play the big shot. Of course, people turned away from us, bored or hurt.

Now that we're in A.A. and sober and winning back the esteem of our friends and business associates, we find that we still need to exercise special vigilance. As an insurance against "big-shot-ism" we can often check ourselves by remembering that we are today sober only by the grace of God and that any success we may be having is far more His success than ours.”
